WINPATROL 8.0 ADDS SUPPORT FOR MOZILLA FIREFOX

New Security Software Also Supports Windows XP Service Pack 2

Scotia, New York, June 20th, 2004 – BillP Studios announced today that its upcoming WinPatrol 8.0 security software will include new features to support the Mozilla Firefox web browser as well as Microsoft's Service Pack 2 for Windows XP. Scheduled for release in August, this new version of WinPatrol affirms BillP's commitment to protect all of its supporters from spyware, adware, and other malicious programs, regardless of their choice of browsers.

"While Microsoft's new Windows XP Service Pack 2 will focus heavily on security issues, many of our members already have plans to switch to Firefox and other alternate browsers," commented Bill Pytlovany, CEO. "Once people have had their computer systems violated, they never want that kind of experience ever again," Pytlovany noted.

BillP's popular WinPatrol software monitors and detects changes on computer systems that may indicate attacks by dangerous programs. Users often think they're enhancing their web experiences by installing "free" software from the web, only to be tricked into installing spyware or adware that won't go away. WinPatrol alerts users to the system changes these unwelcome programs make to users' computers, giving web surfers robust protection against potentially malicious software.

While the free WinPatrol can remove the dangerous programs it detects, a $19.95 PLUS version is available for those users wanting even more protection and information about the programs running on their computer.

CNet's Spyware Center calls WinPatrol one of the "Top Guns when it comes to fighting Spyware." WinPatrol is currently available for download from many online sites such as PC World Online, ComputerCops.biz, Download.com, or directly from BillP Studios at www.WinPatrol.com.
